worlding brings ideas about virtual places and societies together with perceptions about the real world in an era of mounting global uncertainty as mass media and the internet consume ever increasing portions of our lives are we becoming disengaged from face to face human interaction and real world concerns or is the virtual world actually bringing people closer together and making them more involved with social issues worlding argues that the virtual and the real are profoundly interconnected often in ways we don't fully appreciate drawing on sociology cultural studies philosophy media analysis and technology studies worlding makes the argument that virtual experience and social networking can be vital links to utopian visions and an appreciation of the world's diversity

this book is a clear systematic original and lively account of how media representations shape the way we see our and others lives in a global age it provides in depth analysis of a range of international media representations of disaster war conflict migration and celebration the book explores how images stories and voices on television the internet and in advertisements and newspapers invite us to relocate to distant contexts and to relate to people who are remote from our daily lives by developing mediated intimacy and focusing on the self it also explores how these representations shape our self narratives orgad examines five sites of media representation the other the nation possible lives the world and the self she argues that representations can and should contribute to fostering more ambivalence and complexity in how we think and feel about the world our place in it and our relation to far away others media representations and the global imagination will be of particular interest to students and scholars of media and cultural studies as well as sociology politics international relations development studies and migration studies the dynamic precarious relationship between technology and imagination or more broadly between the sciences and the humanities is a thrilling crux offering possibilities scholars and artists of previous generations might have only hoped for in the most abstract way no longer is technological advancement confined to the laboratory or to the pages of speculative fiction it is an accepted expected aspect of modern existence including contemporary art performance and literature from the ways we communicate to the ways we create technology has become a conduit as well as an inspiration for imaginative innovation the advent and accessibility of new media communication outlets and innovative software programs have democratized the creative landscape building a community of professionals and amateurs who can freely discuss and shape the way literature art and performance are created and perceived just as technology has been liberated from categorical confines it has helped art and literature be realized as entities that occur in places besides galleries and libraries tablets and e readers for example make it possible for literary enthusiasts to read books that are out of print difficult to find or even self published by amateur writers which would have merely been a bibliophile s dream as little as a decade ago correspondingly the essays in this volume examine the intersection of technology and imaginative creation as it applies to and influences modern film fiction graphic novels and pedagogical practice the contributors investigate how technology has indelibly changed the practice of literary and cultural analysis and even the most basic facets of contemporary society communication relation and creation this book deals with the connection between media and the future it is about the imagination of futuristic media and what this says about the present but it also shows how media are imagined as means to control the future the book begins by describing different theories of the evolution of media and by exploring how this evolution is tied to expectations regarding the future the authors discuss the theories of imagination and how the imagination of media futures operates to do so they analyse four concrete examples the imaginations once related to interactive television and how they were performed in an important piece of media art those on ubiquitous computing which remain present today those on three dimensional especially holographic displays that are prevalent everywhere in cinema and lastly the contemporary imaginations on quantum computing and how they have been enacted in science fiction the book appeals to readers interested in the question of how our present imagines its technological futures
